

Dr. Nancy Gruber graduated from the University of Minnesota in 2006 after early admission from Delaware Valley University. She has spent some of her career in mixed animal practice and in the regulatory aspect of Thoroughbred, Quarter Horse, and Standardbred racing as well as in an animal poison control center where she published 4 chapters in a veterinary textbook on Toxicology. The predominant time in her career has been in emergency medicine with an emphasis in surgery. When not in a game of "Feral Cat Parkour" or "The Floor is Lava" with a less than genteel 110-pound Heinz 57 K9 of DOOM...she enjoys Comicons, gaming, horror/Sci-Fi movies, and gaming with her ungrateful dumpster muffin cats: Forrest, Ripley, Jonesy, and Chairman Meow. Her "Plus 1, Ride or Die" is Bruce "The Small Hippo or Excessive Potato". His presence at work is both a study in adulation and odorification with the office staff.
